MIKE WARD WHAT'S HOT TO WATCH

■ NATURE documentaries used to be rubbish. Well, OK, maybe that's a bit harsh but they had their technological limitations, put it that way. Not any more, though, as illustrated tonight by Bear: Spy In The Woods (BBC1, 9pm). The plus-point these days is that cameras can be tiny, versatile and sufficiently discreet to get right up close to the action (as opposed to allowing some poor sucker of a cameraman to wade into the woods and get mauled, that is), and so the programme-makers have taken full advantage of what this allows them, filming-wise. Narrated by David Attenborough (obviously), the documentary captures brilliant close-up footage of black bears, polar bears and giant pandas going about their everyday business.

Elsewhere, The Kids From Coronation Street (ITV1, 8pm) meets some of the young actors who previously played roles now associated with other performers. If you follow me, hence, we meet the former Nick Tilsley, the one-time Tracy Barlow and the previous Sarah Louise Platt. The current Chesney also pops up, but then you can't really keep the lad quiet these days, can you?

...on last night's telly

COULD today's youngsters, whose only knowledge of battle comes from Hollywood films, TV news bulletins and violent video games, cope with the rigours of war, as experienced by their forefathers?

The question has been posed recently by reality shows including Destination D-Day: The Raw Recruits, Spitfire Ace and now BOMBER CREW (C4).

Over the next month, four young men and one woman are being trained up to crew and fly a World War II American B17 Flying Fortress bomber.

Just one lucky volunteer will get a rare opportunity to pilot the most famous heavy bomber of all - the Avro Lancaster. They'd better not crash it, because out of 20,000 Lancasters that were built during the war, it's one of only two that are still flying.

With lots of archive footage, this is a great blend of reality show and historical documentary - but with a unique twist.

Tears

All five trainees are the grandchildren of airmen who flew Lancasters on night raids over Germany in the 1940s.

The three pilots in the group - John Nolan, Tim Chambers and James Smith - were put through their paces in a Harvard trainer - the same aircraft that their grandfathers flew when they trained. John wiped away a tear when he realised he was flying over an airfield where his grandfather, Flt Lt Stephen Nolan, was based in 1942.

Stephen Nolan won a DFC after flying 39 missions over Germany. It was only after he died that John read his grandfather's logbook and discovered why his active service was cut short.

His Mosquito bomber crashed on take-off and burst into flames. The bombs on board exploded and Flt Lt Nolan was dragged half-conscious from the wreck.

In his logbook he wrote: "Don't really want to fly Mosses again. Feeling a little rotten."

John said: "I think that's a 1940s way of articulating the fear that he felt."

TODAY'S ANSWERS IN TOMORROW'S

CAN you crack the Alphabeater? It's a twist on our popular Alphapuzzle, designed to stretch your mental muscles to the limit. Each grid number represents a letter - or black square. As in Alphapuzzle, every letter of the alphabet is used. But now you have to complete the grid too! Use the given letter or letters and the given black square or squares - below the main grid - to start.

To add to the fiendish fun, Alphabeater is 'rotationally symmetrical'. So, for example, if there is a six-letter word Across which starts in the top left corner, there will be a corresponding six-letter word Across which ends in the bottom right corner square. Every black square has one such symmetrical 'twin', but the 'twin' may not always share the same number. This can help you identify other black squares.

Of course, if the centre square is black, it has no corresponding 'twin'. Solution tomorrow. Stuck? Try the Extra Letter Line below: (Deduct three minutes for each extra clue letter heard). Callers will also be given two black square numbers free of any penalty.

Calls cost 75p per minute from BT landlines.

TARGET TIME: 31 minutes

Yesterday's solution:
Black squares: 2, 3, 11, 12, 16-18, 26-28, 34, 35, 37, 38.
Across: Junkmail, Taut, Acumen, Wreath, Pivot, Trample, Know How, Zilch, Engulf, Clique, Same, Extolled.
Down: Function, Neat, Akimbo, Waunted, Gaunt, Cornfrey, Flowery, Acute, Stream, Icicle, Tuft, Lictured.

THE WORLD'S MOST ACCURATE WATCH

can be checked to the second against the speaking clock!

Everybody should have an accurate watch, a watch to set all others by. Today's very special offer is for the world's most accurate watch. Guaranteed accurate to less than a second in a million years, this new state-of-the-art watch even self-adjusts during the changeover from summertime to wintertime and vice versa without you having to touch it! It is so accurate that you can check it against the speaking clock to the second. It can never be wrong! The secret is that the clock picks up the official British Standard frequency time and date signal, controlled by the National Physical Laboratories atomic clock and broadcast by the British Telecom International transmitter at Rugby. This signal is effective up to a radius of just over 1448km (900 miles). Featuring a chrono alarm function and light it has the choice of 12 or 24 hour format. With manual time setting too, ideal for when you are abroad, it is water resistant to three metres and requires one lithium battery (included). Completely automatic, the watch will find the exact time, day and date by itself. On offer for a very special £29.99 - postage and packing free. One day all watches will be this accurate, order yours today!

Just Jane

JANE O'GORMAN SOLVES YOUR PROBLEMS TODAY AND EVERY DAY

I'm just too tiny for sex

I HAVE a very small penis, which means I cannot have sex with my wife. It is only two and a half inches when erect. I was also only born with one testicle.

I get upset all the time because of my size. If we attempt to make love and she plays with me, then I can orgasm, but not very much.

The size of my penis affects all aspects of my life. When I go swimming, I have to wait until everyone has left the changing room before I can take my trunks off.

I also put socks down the front of my pants to make it look as if I'm bigger.

It's just not fair on my wife, who wants children. We've been married for 10 years.

JANE SAYS: I understand that this must be a very embarrassing problem for you, but there are people who can help you.

Talk to your wife and see if you can summon up the courage to visit your GP together.

Be honest and explain your lack of confidence, lack of sex and lack of children. See what he or she can do for you.

It's possible that an operation to inject fat from another part of your body into your penis could be organised through the NHS or privately.

Or try the British Association for Sexual and Marital Therapy, PO Box 13686, London SW20 9ZH. Good luck and please find the strength to get help. You can always call The Samaritans (08457 909090) if you get desperate.

DOES SHE FANCY ME?

I JUST don't know where I stand right now with the girl I fancy.

At the moment we're just good mates, but I'd like to take things to the next stage and make her my girlfriend.

The problem is that I don't really know how she feels about me.

We've been out together a few times and each time she's made it clear that she just wants to be my pal.

But her friends and mine keep telling me that she really likes me more than that.

My friends aren't malicious and I know they wouldn't deliberately wind me up, so where do I stand?

The latest thing I hear is that she also likes another guy and can't choose between the two of us.

As a friend, she means the world to me.

But I don't want to lose her and drive her away by getting things wrong.

What do you think I should do?

JANE SAYS: I hate to burst your bubble, but I think you've got to accept what your friend has told you herself.

She has told you that she's happy just being your friend, so learn to live with that.

The problem with letting friends get involved is that you soon up in a game of Chinese whispers. One person says one thing and it all quickly gets exaggerated and distorted out of all proportion.

Ultimately, your friend knows how you feel and knows where you are, so simply leave the ball in her court.

If she ends up coming to you, then great. If she doesn't, you'll just have to brush yourself off and carry on living your life to the full.

Left in lurch by a lying rat

I'VE had my heart very badly broken by a guy I thought I could trust.

It's been six months now since we broke up, but I'm still no nearer to getting over him.

My friends try to pair me off with other men, but it's still him that I'm in love with.

I've lost weight and can't seem to concentrate on anything else. I fret about him every day and wonder whether he thinks about me.

We first got together a couple of years ago at work. He confessed that he wasn't happy at home and said I made him laugh. I just thought he was being nice, because I knew he already had a steady partner.

But last year things started to get more serious and he began revealing his true feelings to me. He said that he loved me and had never felt that way about anyone before.

My ex had been a compulsive liar, so I had vowed never to trust another man again. But gradually I allowed myself to believe that my lovely colleague was telling the truth.

I told him that I loved him, too, thinking that might drive him away – but it only brought us closer together. We had so much in common and it felt so right being in each other's arms. But everything came crashing down when his partner found out about us.

He immediately abandoned me. So much for his words: "You can trust me – I'm not like other men."

What's eating me up is that a small part of me still thinks he was genuine. But the bigger part thinks he just used me and took me for a fool, and that's what really hurts.

Will I ever be able to get over him and trust anyone again?

JANE SAYS: Of course you'll get over this rat in the end, but you're going to need more time. To date, your heart has been badly broken by two men, so the hurt is twice as deep.

Ask your well-meaning friends to leave you alone to work things out your own way. Use this fragile period as "me" time. Concentrate on building your self-esteem back up again with a trip to a spa, a lovely holiday or a new look. Do the things you've always wanted to do.

Scrub meeting a new man right off the agenda and you might just meet Mr Perfect when you're least expecting it.

When you do, use your experience. Trust your instincts, ask lots of questions and only date him if he's single!

As for your ex, who cares about him? He's history. Let's hope he IS thinking about you as his partner gives him hell. It's no more than the wimp deserves.

■ I DON'T like the way the woman next door treats her children. I often hear them crying for hours on end. Is there anyone I can call?

JANE SAYS: Think about contacting the NSPCC Helpline (0800 800 500). This is a 24/7 helpline for people who are concerned about a child's safety.

Tranny drug plea

I AM a transvestite and have been cross-dressing for a number of years. I am not gay, but love to dress and act as a woman when I'm alone.

I'm still hugely attracted to my long-term girlfriend. She's fully aware of my secret life and doesn't like it at all, but tells me that she puts up with it because she loves me so much.

I've seen products which contain natural oestrogens – a female hormone – and want to know what effect these would have on me. Could they harm me?

JANE SAYS: I really can't advise that you take any drugs unless they are specifically prescribed by your doctor.

Buying mail-order potions or pills via the internet can be very dangerous indeed.

You should realise that there are some extremely unscrupulous operators out there and you just don't know what you might end up taking.

If you are worried about your mental or physical health, then arrange to speak to your GP.

Also contact The Beaumont Society (01582 412220) if you ever need advice or support.

IS IT TIME TO CHANGE?

Day Two

PHIL IS FINALLY HOME

Me too... I've had a hell of a week

Hi babe... I'm glad you're home

Sorry love I'm going out with the boys

Right, go and have your shower and we'll go out for a meal

ABBIE IS FURIOUS

WHAT!

Well, it is Friday and you know I always do

I thought this week we'd do something together

Well, you thought wrong, but I promise I'll make it up to you

Yeah, right!

Text DSJOKE (space) name and joke to 61616

A BOBBY was patrolling his beat late in the evening when he walked past a second-hand car dealer's site.

He suddenly spotted two little old ladies sitting in a used car. The copper stopped and asked them why they were sitting there in the car. Were they trying to steal it?

"Heavens no, we bought it." "Then why don't you drive it away?"

"We can't drive." "Then why did you buy it?"

"We were told that if we bought a car here we'd get screwed. So we're waiting."

WHO are the sadists who keep picking Natalie Appleton to do the trials?

Surely the poor girl has suffered enough in the name of so-called entertainment.

Watching someone getting scared to death like this is just sick. Or is that the whole point of reality TV like I'm A Celebrity?

Mrs G. TAYLOR, Wolverhampton.

IT'S hard to believe in this day and age that the so-called parents Sarah Whitaker and David Askew could let their children live in filth while they lived in luxury.

I cried when I read of those poor children. Seven years in prison does not seem enough for this evil pair.

Movers & groovers

A HANGOVER may not be the only headache facing bosses the morning after the Christmas party. Punch-ups and sexual harassment claims are just some of the problems that can follow the seasonal office bash, says Ray Silverstein, partner at lawyers Browne Jacobson.

He says: "Allowing employees the delights of a free bar can prove a recipe for disaster." Brawls and sexual advances can leave employers looking at possible sackings and unfair dismissal cases the following day.

Silverstein advises firms to memo staff setting out the kinds of behaviour that will not be tolerated.

BT is pressing ahead with some initiatives from flamboyant retail boss Pierre Danon following his resignation.

Yesterday it announced the creation of an entertainment division to be headed by Andrew Burke.

Burke, a former dot-com entrepreneur, will steer the group into the launch of a service selling DVD quality videos over broadband, much talked up by Danon.

It has also hired Dan Marks, UK president of Universal Studios, to help negotiate content for the service.

GUS, the retail conglomerate that owns Argos and Homebase, is getting an injection of experience from the drugs industry.

John Coombe, 59, finance director at GlaxoSmithKline, is joining the company as a part-time director.

A BOTTLE of The Famous Grouse, signed by the stars of Bridget Jones: Edge of Reason - Hugh Grant, Colin Firth and Renée Zellweger - will go up for sale today - St Andrew's Day - on internet site eBay.

The bottle was signed at a post-premier party in London. Proceeds will go to the Marie Curie Cancer Care.

JUST days after Dixons signalled the death knell for the video recorder, Japan's Toshiba yesterday signed a deal with four Hollywood studios to supply films on its new HD DVD format.

The first players will go on sale next year.

THE DEALER

WHO'S DEALING

FORMJET chairman and chief executive Lyndon Chapman has been topping up his stake in the computer software company. It was announced yesterday he had bought 100,000 shares at 4.18p each, taking his holding to 4.5 million shares or 6.84%. Shares rose 0.38p to 4.5p.

Tesco's training blitz

BRITAIN'S biggest private employer Tesco is to expand its apprenticeship training scheme for 16 to 24-year-olds.

The supermarket giant, which has a workforce of 237,000, is also launching a new initiative aimed at the over-24s.

Led by its chief executive, Sir

Terry Leahy, the firm is to create 480 apprentice posts in the UK, becoming the first retailer to have its in-house training accredited by the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority.

It is now entitled to award nationally-recognised National Vocational (NVQs) based on its internal programmes, giving apprentices practical work experience in-store and help in developing key skills in maths and English. Tesco's scheme for the over-24s will involve links with local colleges, and a trial will begin in the New Year.

HOT GOSSIP

TECHNOLOGY staffing group Glotel rose 1p to 105.5p on talk its forthcoming results would please investors. Its key markets are said to be growing strongly and its emerging markets, such as South America, are believed to be starting to add to sales and profits growth.

Courts collapse

9,400 JOBS FEAR AT FURNITURE STORES

FURNITURE store group Courts collapsed into administration yesterday.

And the fall of the 154-year-old chain threatens the future of its 9,400 staff and 350 stores into doubt.

Courts had to call in the administrators after its banks refused to lend it any more money.

Buyers

The group, which used Bruce Forsyth in adverts, owes around £280million but tangible assets were worth just £133m at the last count.

Shareholders will be left with nothing and customers who have paid for goods not yet delivered have no guarantee they will get the goods or their money back.

The Courts board said it would try to keep the group's overseas arm trading as normal. Analysts

by TONY LEONARD

expect the administrators will try to run the business as a going concern while looking for buyers for all or some of the stores.

Founded in Canterbury in 1850 by Henry Court, the store was bought by three brothers of the Cohen family in 1945 and expanded.

The family, who still own 51% of the now worthless shares, were ousted from management control in June.

The new boss, chairman Leo McKee, is still in a battle with Customs & Excise over whether Courts should pay £42m VAT on hire purchase deals with customers.

Credit

Former UK managing director Steven Cohen has been criticised for loose management which led to writing off millions in unwanted furniture.

His father Bruce racked up debts by granting credit to customers at stores strung out across the Caribbean, Africa and south-east Asia.

Analyst Richard Ratner of Seymour Pierce said: "The stewardship of the Cohen family over the last decade or more must bear the bulk of the blame."

He criticised current management as being over optimistic, saying they should have accepted a £50m buy-out from Steven Cohen.

Shares were suspended at 13.5p. Only this spring they were worth 334p.

Aldi's battle plans

GERMAN-owned discount retailer Aldi is to spend £500million on an aggressive UK expansion plan.

Up to 200 new stores are planned over the next seven years.

This comes as the group tries to reposition itself in the UK by placing greater emphasis on quality.

Aldi has struggled to build a strong market share in Britain because supermarket retailers such as Tesco and Asda have kept their prices so low.

Range

The company is one of the biggest grocers in Germany but had just a 0.9% slice of the £124 billion UK grocer market in 2003, according to Verdict Research.

Aldi, which already operates 279 stores in Britain and has just opened a Scottish head office in Bathgate, has increased its own grocery lines to 800 from 550.

"In Germany, Aldi has had much more of an emphasis on quality whereas over here it has traditionally been much more about low price," said Gavin Rothwell, senior retail analyst for Verdict Research.

Aldi keeps costs down by charging for plastic bags, not accepting credit cards or cheques and selling only pre-packed food.

March launch for easyMobile

CUT-PRICE phone service easy-Mobile will be ready for launch in March, after the company yesterday agreed a deal with T-Mobile.

easy-Mobile will rent the UK network of T-Mobile and sell Sim cards allowing cheap calls over the internet.

The phone company will pay royalties to easyJet founder Stelios Haji-Ioannou for the use of his brand for the venture. But it will be 100% owned by Danish telecom, TDC.

Smoke screen

BREWER and pub group Belhaven is to build "smokers' comfort" zones to help overcome the impact of Scotland's cigarette ban.

Chief executive Stuart Ross said the company will introduce outdoor smoking areas complete with heaters and umbrellas in its 263 pubs at a cost of about £3,000 per pub.

Ross blamed any impact of a ban for a share price wobble.
